ORAL ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

International Commodity Agreements

*421 DR. SHRIKANT RAM CHANDRA JICHKAR: Will the Minister of COMMERCE be pleased to state:

(a) the international commodity agreements currently subsisting alongwith their brief details;

(b) the mechanism of making a periodical review of such agreements; and

(c) the impact of the latest round of GATT on these agreements?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF COMMERCE (SHRI BOLLA BULLI RAMAIAH): (a) to (c)

A Statement is laid on the table of the House.

Statement

(a) The International Commodity Agreements currently subsisting are:

- (i) International Cocoa Agreement, 1993
- (ii) International Coffee Agreement, 1994
- (iii) International Agreement on Jute and Jute Products, 1989
- (iv) International Agreement on Natural Rubber, 1995
- (v) International Agreement on Olive Oil and Table Olives, 1993
- (vi) International Tropical Timber Agreement, 1994 (To come in effect in September, 1996—presently International Tropical Timber Agreement, 1983 is in force)
- (vii) International Sugar Agreement, 1992
- (viii) International Grain Agreement, 1995

Board objectives of all these Agreements include consultations among and between producers and consumers; exchange of information of production, consumption and related aspects; cooperation between producers and consumers on various activities like research and development, market development, diversification etc.

(b) The Commodity Agreements generally remain in force for four/five years after their entry into force and have provisions for extensions for specified periods. As such there are no mechanisms for periodical review other than through renegotiations. There are provisions in the Agreements for negotiation of new Agreements.

(c) There is no impact of Uruguay Round on the International Commodity Agreements as such.

DR. SHRIKANT RAMCHANDRA JICHKAR: Mr. Chairman, Sir, my first supplementary pertains to part (a) of the reply, that is, the International agreement on Olive Oil and Table Olives, 1993. Sir, olive oil has assumed a great significance in view of the latest research. Olive oil is very good for heart. Two table-spoon-full of olive oil will give you a guarantee against heart attack and keep your arteries clean. Because of this, a lot of consumers want more and more olive oil. But there is a total scarcity of olive oil in the Indian market. When this agreement was entered into in 1993, did the Government realise this fact? What has the Government done to see that there is no scarcity of olive oil in the Indian market?

SHRI BOLLA BULLI RAMAIAH: Sir, out of eight items, the hon. Member mentioned only olive oil. We have an agreement mainly with respect to coffee, jute, jute products, timber, sugar and grains. But as far as olive oil is concerned, it does not form part of our agreement with GATT.

DR. SHRIKANT RAMCHANDRA JICHKAR: I am sorry, Sir. But in the reply, it has been clearly said that following is the list of the agreements which are subsisting and we had entered into an agreement on olive oil and table olives in 1993. The hon. Minister said that there is no agreement on olive oil and table olives. Will the Minister correct his reply or will he enlighten us more on this? The statement which he has laid on the Table of the House says that the agreement which is there at serial number (v) is the International agreement on Olive Oil and Table Olives, 1993. Kindly enlighten us on this because we are very much concerned about the coronary arteries of each other.

SHRI BOLLA BULLI RAMAIAH: We have made it very clear that out of eight commodities, we have an agreement with respect to five commodities. For the three items, including rubber and oil olive, we are just passing on the information and not to do anything more than that.

DR. SHRIKANT RAMCHANDRA JICHKAR: It doesn't matter. But then, what has this agreement to do with it? Anyway, you kindly note down my suggestion that we have to have more and more olive oil in the Indian market because when the consciousness grows in this country, all the 800 MPs will demand olive oil. Kindly make a note of this. Sir, should I ask my supplementary? I would like to put two more supplementaries. The first supplementary has become redundant because the Minister could not reply. Now, my second supplementary deals with the International Tropical Timber Agreement, 1994. Sir, the International Tropical Timber Agreement was entered into in 1983 and it is still subsisting.

It was subsisting till yesterday because yesterday was Sunday. The International Tropical Timber Agreement, 1994 has begun from today, that is, the 2nd September, 1996. From 1983 to 1994, that is, from the date of entering into an agreement, there were a lot of changes in our policies with respect to forests, environment, felling of timber trees, teak etc., particularly in the teak area. I come from an area which is one of the biggest timber markets in the country, that is Nagpur. Will the Minister enlighten us as to what the substantive difference between the 1983 agreement and the 1994 agreement is?

SHRI BOLLA BULLI RAMAIAH: Sir, the hon. Member wants to know about the International Tropical Timber Agreement. It is mainly concerned with exchange of information with respect to tissue culture and the product that you can develop in these countries from the point of view of climate. Research and development is going on in each country mainly to have more and more information and to protect and develop the tropical timber in each country to the extent possible. This is continuing. Only a few days back, this matter has come up in the Cabinet meeting and we have again agreed to extend the agreement further. This is advantageous not only to our country but also to the other neighbouring countries.

DR. SHRIKANT RAMCHANDRA JICHKAR: The second part of my supplementary is, now this agreement deals with passing of information with respect to tissue culture and other things. Sir, throughout India for the last five or six years we have been seeing that the multinational companies or even the Indian companies are minting money in the name of teak. They are advertising teak bonds, this bond, that bond; you pay one thousand rupees today and take away ten lakhs of rupees after ten years! And that is something which the Forest Department says is impossible. If a teak tree is planted today, to develop that much girth, it will take about 60 years, and these companies from Bombay and from different parts of the country are misleading the Indian public in the name of teak bonds. And then they are using agricultural lands. Sir, there is a bar on agricultural land being used for non-agricultural purposes. This will disrupt the agricultural and eco. balance of our country. So, it is essential that this has to be discouraged. So, in view of this Agreement, what is the information which you are getting from other countries? Like, you are exchanging information. What will your Ministry as well as the other Ministries in association with your Ministry do to see that these companies do not mislead the Indian public?

SHRI BOLLA BULLI RAMAIAH: Sir, I agree with the hon. Member that this sort of misleading information should be cut down. However, the Environment and Forest Ministry is also taking up various issues. As far as the Commerce Ministry is concerned, we will not directly involve ourselves in these things except for the information regarding productivity, climatic conditions, tissue development, research and other things. We will pass on the information to you. I think that it is a very good suggestion. Thank you very much.

SHRI ASHOK MITRA: Sir, most of these commodities covered by the Agreements relate to primary commodities including metals and the Minister is surely aware that in the case of most of these commodities there is a very concerted attempt on the part of the advanced industrial countries to press down the prices that are offered and even when these Agreements are renegotiated, there is an attempt to tilt the terms of trade against the primary producing countries. Now in this tussle the poorer countries had a very strong support made available to them by the United Nations agency, UNCTAD—the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development. In fact, this is the only United Nations Conference which, time and again, has come in support of the poorer countries. What has happened recently is that the advanced industrial countries are now irritated and they have a certain attitude of animosity towards UNCTAD, and recently, apparently there was a meeting of the Executive Board where a concerted attempt was made to pass some laws and by-laws which would diminish the integrity and independence of the UNCTAD Secretariat. I would hope that our Government and the Minister would look into the matter and ensure that the kind of support that we are getting from UNCTAD, we would continue to be getting and there would be no interference or aggression on behalf of the advanced industrial countries.

SHRI BOLLA BULLI RAMAIAH: Thank you very much. Sir, the hon. Member's advice is well taken and we will take that into consideration when we come to the UNCTAD Agreement, but it involves mainly nondiscrimination, greater transparency, unilateral demonstration, elimination of trade distortions, effective and reliable dispute redressal, and some of these things will be part of it, and definitely we will take into consideration the point which he has suggested and we will have to take up this in the next round of the Conference and we will safeguard the interests of our country in all respects.
