

To sum up, sanctions added uncertainties, but their effect has been marginal as Indian proposals that came up for Board consideration so far have been approved by the Board, although some of the G-7 countries have not been supporting Indian proposals in the Board seen as non-BHN due to the G-7 policy on sanction.

3. Under the sanctions, there has been denial of all exports of specified products from USA to specific Indian entities on the entity list. Indian entities affected by the export restrictions imposed by USA as a part of its restrictive economic measures have hardly any export to the USA, and therefore, there is no noticeable adverse impact on Indian trade and commerce.

On 22nd September 2001, the United States Government lifted sanctions imposed on India under its domestic law following India's unclear tests in May, 1998. Lifting of sanctions will enhance economic cooperation between India and the United States, formally end US opposition to extension of loans to India by international financial institutions and stimulate trade and technological cooperation between the two countries on a wide range of sensitive and 'dual use' goods and technologies.

Government has used every opportunity to convey to the US authorities that all unilateral restrictions against India are unjustified and counter-productive
