MATTERS RAISED WITH PERMISSION

Telangana issue

SHRI M. VENKAIAH NAIDU (Karnataka): Sir, I have to stand again with a heavy heart about what is happening in the State of Andhra Pradesh. Sir, with regard to issue of formation of a separate Telangana State, I have been repeatedly saying in the House that the House must be taken into confidence. Some ground work has to be done and some consultation is needed to be held with different political parties and also with the Legislators and Members of Parliament. Unfortunately, it is not done. I am really pained, Sir, the way the things are happening and how the things are taken up in my State on both sides of Telangana as well as Andhra and Rayalaseema. It is really painful. My only suggestion to the Government is, we don't want to complicate the matter by Raising temperatures in the Parliament because, you know, it is a regional issue, emotive issue and sentimental issue. The Government should do some homework, prepare some roadmap and then take the concerned people into confidence. It should, at least, hold discussions with their own MPs and MLAs, because it is the ruling party, and prepare the ground and also have some clarity about different contentious issues—with regard to the Hyderabad city, what is the approach; with regard to formation of the State, what is the approach; with regard to regional aspirations of other regions, what is the approach? Unless these things are made very clear, unnecessary tension will be growing day by day. Students have come to streets. Now, there is a bandh in Rayalseema and some parts of the State. If this continues, Sir, there is again going to be unrest.

I only request the Government, as I have been doing for the last three days, to come to the House with some road map and also explain its thinking on these matters which have been raised from time to time, and then move forward. Yesterday, it was not my technical objection on making a statement outside; my worry is that unless people are taken into confidence, there are bound to be reactions. The reaction today is such that I just heard the hon. Chief Minister on television saying, 'Unless I have majority, I will not be able to bring a Resolution.' Technically, he is correct. But, at the same time, the Home Minister has announced something and he has done it outside the House. I don't find fault with the Ruling Party's MPs; whether it is this party or that party, and there are some MLAs of the Opposition Party also. Some 106 MLAs had gone to the Speaker and submitted their resignations. It is a very serious matter. I only urge upon the Government to. ..(Interruptions)...
