Stagnation in the cotton textile industry

776. SHRI VIRENDRA VERMA:
SHRI RASHEED MASOOD:

Will the Minister of TEXTILES be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that because of virtual stagnation in the cotton textile industry, the domestic demand for cotton is not likely to rise during 1986-87 and that with the higher cotton yield anticipated in 1986-87 season, cotton glut in the country is feared;

(b) if so, what is the anticipated domestic demand for cotton during 1986-87 as compared to the year 1985-86 and to what extent the cotton stock with the Cotton Corporation of India is likely to rise due to the sluggish domestic demand; and

(c) whether Government propose to evolve a long-term export policy, for the export of cotton to meet the situation; if so, what steps have been taken by government in this direction?

THE DEPUTY MINISTER IN THE MINISTRY OF TEXTILES (SHRI S. KRISHNA KUMAR): (a) and (b) The domestic consumption of cotton is expected to increase by 2.4 lakh bales over the last year's consumption, while the production during 1986-87 is expected to be 102 lakh bales as against last year's production of 107 lakh bales. The Cotton Corporation of India purchases Kapas at minimum support prices. Whenever the prices tend to fall below the support prices. It is therefore, not possible to anticipate the extent of rise in the stocks of cotton with the Cotton Corporation of India.

(c) Government announced its cotton export policy on a long term basis on 24th October, 1986. According to the policy, export of following quantities of cotton would be permitted per year for a period of three years beginning with the current cotton season 1986-87:

5 lakh bales

Digvijay variety of cotton—50,000
