Some of you are veterans who had long experience in both the Houses and no word of advice is needed for them from the Chair.

So far as the newly elected Members are concerned, I would like to remind them that they have been elected to one of the highest forums in the country and that they should rise to the occasion and discharge their duties not only to the best of their ability but also in a manner that will redound to their credit. Now, there are Constitutional provisions; there are Rules of the House; there are also various conventions and also certain unwritten rules of etiquette. All these, you will learn very soon and very quickly when you see other Members observing them. I am sure you will have a very fruitful and a very useful membership in the House and contribute your best to the country and to the respective parties from which you have come. With these words, I would again welcome these Members and now proceed to the next item.

MR. CHAIRMAN : Hon. Members, it is my melancholic duty to refer to the passing away of one of our great national leaders, Babu Jagjiwan Ram, in New Delhi on the 6th of July, 1986. I think the House would like to express to their tributes to the great leader and I would, therefore, call upon the Leader of the House to start.
