THE DEPUTY MINISTER IN THE MINISTRY OF CIVIL SUPPLIES (SHRI BRAJMOHAN MOHANTY): (a) There has been a mixed trend in the prices of various essential commodities during March, 1981 over February, 1981 in as much as the wholesale price indices of some commodities have increased, some have declined and some others have remained steady.

(b) The rise in prices of some essential commodities, apart from the general inflationary pressures in the economy, may be attributed to after effects of the unprecedented drought of 1979, fall in production of some essential commodities, increase in the prices of petro-products, increase in the administered prices of steel and coal, increase in support/procurement prices and the seasonality factor.

(c) The main thrust of the Government policy to curb the rising trend in the prices of essential commodities is to increase production. The public distribution system is being expanded. Arrangements for import of edible oils for the current oil year have been made to ensure supplies through the public distribution system. The export of essential commodities is being regulated and some essential commodities in short supply are being imported. The credit policy continues to be restrictive. The provisions of the Essential Commodities Act and Orders issued under it as well as the Prevention of Blackmarketing and Maintenance of Supplies of Essential Commodities Act, 1980 are being enforced vigorously by the States.
