

(b to (d) Every endeavour is made by railways to keep the railway station platforms and railway tracks clean. Some of the important measures taken by the railways for maintaining high standard of cleanliness and hygiene at the stations are as follows:—

(i) Washable aprons have been provided on the tracks at important junction stations, terminal stations etc. to facilitate cleaning and washing of tracks.

(ii) Sanitary Inspectors with adequate sanitary staff have been posted at all important junction stations;

(iii) Their work is inspected regularly by the supervisory staff at the station.

(iv) Surprise inspections are made by the senior officials from the Divisional Headquarters, Zonal Headquarters and the Railway Board.

(v) To motivate the staff for achieving high standard of cleanliness, competition are arranged and trophies and other prizes are awarded to the best maintained stations for the staff working there.

(vi) Cooperation of the travelling public is sought in maintaining sanitary conditions at stations by exhorting them to desist from unhygienic habits.

(vii) Notices are displayed requesting passengers not to use toilet in coaches when the train is standing at a station.

(viii) Cleanliness drives are launched from time to time, to ensure proper cleaning and high standard of sanitation at the station.
