

should be built up in such a manner that it helps industries which have become sick due to demand recession;

(b) if so, what are the other suggestions made by the chamber;

(c) whether their suggestions have been considered; and

(d) if so, to what extent Government have agreed with their views?

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE AND INDUSTRY (SHRI R. VENKATARAMAN): (a) to (d) A statement is laid on the Table of the House.

Statement

(a) Yes, Sir.

(b) The Indian Merchants Chamber has made several suggestions relating to indirect taxes. The more important of them are as follows;

(i) Necessary excise relief should be provided to industries which have become sick because of increased prices of raw materials, constant prices of end-products and demand recession.

(ii) There should be a provision for rebate of indirect taxes borne by raw material and components. Further extension of the tax credit procedure may be considered, particularly to heavily-taxed items.

(iii) The burden of indirect taxes on critical inputs like electricity, steel and cement should be minimum.

(iv) Plant and machinery installed in new undertakings should be free of customs and excise duties; the production of such undertakings should also be exempted from excise duty for an initial stipulated period.

(v) Indirect taxes should be in the ascending order for (a) capital goods, (b) raw materials and intermediates, (c) goods of mass consumption and (d) durable consumer goods.

(vi) Since 95 per cent of the revenue is derived from 40 commodities, it may be considered whether the remaining commodities should be freed from the excise net.

(vii) Relief from Central Excise duty should be provided to industries set up in backward areas.

(viii) The rate of Central excise duty in respect of factories run mainly with manual labour should be kept at a lower level.

(ix) Basic and auxiliary duties of customs need not be levied separately.

(x) No countervailing duty should be levied on imports where similar products are not produced indigenously.

(xi) Higher production incentive scheme which lapsed on 31-3-79 should be revived.

(c) and (d) The above suggestions will be considered alongwith other pre-Budget representations.
