IISCO	1000	800

Only a few units of Bokaro Steel Plant have been commissioned so far.

(b) None of these plants is presently working to its full installed capacity. The lower utilization of capacity at these plants during the last few years has been due to a variety of reasons differing from plant to plant and often from year to year. Broadly speaking, the main factors were: the unsatisfactory working of coke oven batteries; back-log of maintenance; inadequate maintenance leading to equipment troubles and break-downs; collapse of the steel melting shop roof of Rourkela Steel Plant in July, 1971, affecting the operation of the entire steel plant for several months; inadequate replacement, repairs and maintenance programmes in IISCO; disturbed industrial relations, particularly in the Durgapur Steel Plant and IISCO and to some extent in the Rourkela Steel Plant; power restrictions/failures and severe power cuts/interruptions; inadequate availability of coal, and serious dislocation in rail movement on account of intermittent slow down and industrial unrest in the Railways in 1973-74. In the current financial year, the production at these plants had to be regulated and kept low during the months, April-June, 1974, with a view to conserving stocks of raw materials, first on account of the possibility of the strike by the Railway employees and then on account of the strike itself and its aftermath. There have been certain difficulties in regard to supply of power and coal also].
