

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF SHIPPING AND TRANSPORT (SHRI H. M. TRI-VEDI) :

(a) Yes, Sir.

(b) The main demand of the workers was for increase in Dearness Allowance rate by Rs- 100/- per month for all categories of port and dock workers at all the Major Ports by way of interim relief from 1-1-1974. At the final round of negotiations held on 15-1-1975 before the commencement of the strike, the Minister of Shipping and Transport offered to recommend the grant of the following interim reliefs:—

From 1.1.1974 to 5.7.1974 a lump sum of Rs. 120.

From 6.7.1974 to 31.12.1974 a lump sum of Rs. 180.

From 1.1.1975
Rs. 50 per month.

The representatives of labour, however, insisted on a payment of Rs. 59 per month for 1974 and Rs. 60 per month from 1-1-1975. It was not acceptable to Government and the talks broken down.

(c) The effects of stoppage of port work are felt by (a) shipowners, (b) importers/exporters (c) Port and Dock authorities, (d) workers and (e) other sectors. It is not possible to quantify the loss suffered by various interests due to the port strike.

(d) It is not possible to maintain normal port services during a strike. However, steps were taken to protect the port installation and to maintain certain essential harbour services such as, manning of bridges, tugs, hydraulic gates, cranes, etc., with the help of port officers, the Central Industrial Security Force, local civil authorities and Naval/Army personnel. Certain essential ship movements, especially of POL tankers, were carried out with the help of Naval personnel. The Territorial Army units at the Ports of Bombay and Calcutta were embodied and these were used for maintaining certain essential services and for unloading of foodgrains from some vessels.
