(b) In August—September 1974, five packets of Notes of Five Rupee denomination each having 19 notes with repetitive numbering were detected and stray cases of repetitive numbering of two or three notes of other denominations have also come to notice in the past. Such instances are however rare. Total output of the Currency Note Press, Nasik is presently of the order of 4400 million pieces per annum.

(c) and (d) Enquiries revealed that the repetitive numbering had occurred on account of mechanical defects in the numbering machines which remained undetected at the subsequent examination. Disciplinary action has already been taken against the defaulting employees. Steps are also being taken to replace the old numbering machines by the modern rotary type numbering machines.
