The performance of each branch has to be examined in the context of the overall setting in which it is functioning. Unlike branches in urban or metropolitan areas, branches in rural areas require longer time to inculcate banking habit among the people residing in their command areas. A large number of the branches in the rural areas have been opened during the last three or four years.

The implementation of the Lead Bank Scheme, restructuring of the administrative set up of banks to provide for greater delegation of powers, simplification of forms and procedures, new schemes for extending finance to small borrowers, training of staff to reorient their attitudes etc. are some of the steps that have been taken to enable the rural bank offices to play an effective role in the economy of the rural areas.
