

ask one of them to c*.o it and his name should appear so that it is done properly. What we find here is that some of the Ministers are very fond of gadding their names printed all the time although they are not present and then our junior Ministers come and lay it on the Table of the House. It is not a good thing. I find that our Om Mehta is holding the basket for everybody here. (Interruptions). This is not a good practice. What we see here is that seniors are becoming less serious in the Government. What is happening, I do not know. The law of diminishing returns has begun to operate.

MR. DEPUTY CHAIRMAN: I think it is only fair that the Minister, in whose name the paper laying appears, should be present. But I feel that if he has some other work in the other House or if he himself is held up somewhere else, then he should ask his junior Minister to lay it on the Table and his name should appear. There is no harm if the junior Minister's name appears there. I think this practice should be followed. If the Minister is somehow held up due to some reason, he should inform us so that we can ask his deputy Minister to do it.
