Human Development Index, 2010

†1782. SHRI RAM JETHMALANI:

SHRI RAVI SHANKAR PRASAD:

†Original notice of the question was received in Hindi.

Will the PRIME MINISTER be pleased to state:

(a) whether it is a fact that despite constant steep rise in GDP growth rate in the country since the last one decade, India ranks at 119th position in the list of 169 countries of the world on the basis of Human Development Index, 2010;

(b) if so, the facts thereof; and

(c) the reasons attributable to the fact that despite growth in economic prosperity in the country, no proportionate prosperity in day to day life of the common man is seen in the country?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF PLANNING (SHRI V. NARAYANASAMY): (a) to (c) The Human Development Reports released by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) since 1990 annually has been publishing Human Development Index (HDI) which ranks the countries by the level of their human development. The HDI is based on three indicators, namely Gross Domestic Product (GDP) per capita (in Purchasing Power Parity in US $), life expectancy at birth and education as measured by adult literacy rate and gross enrolment ratio (combined for primary, secondary and tertiary education). As per the "The Human Development Report, 2010", India has been placed at 119th rank in HDI as compared to 134th rank in 2009. It has been clarified in the report that International Data Agencies continuously improve their data series and update the historical data, therefore, year to year changes in the HDI values and rankings across editions of the Human Development Report often reflect changes. The HDR 2010 reveals that India has registered a consistent improvement in HDI value which increased from 0.482 in 2005 to 0.519 in 2010. It is also reported that India has registered highest ever average annual HDI growth rate of 1.66 percent during the decade 2000-2010.

Acknowledging that the benefits of development are not reaching equally to all the sections of the society, the Eleventh Five Year Plan adopted the strategy of promoting inclusive growth. Thus, the objective is to achieve high growth rate with generation of more employment opportunities and strengthening of social infrastructure such as public health and education. The implementation of flagship programmes like Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Scheme (MGNREGS), National Rural Health Mission (NRHM), Sarva Shiksha Abhiyaan (SSA), Rural Drinking Water Supply and Total Sanitation Campaign, etc. along with maintaining a high economic growth rate are expected to further improve India's ranking in HDI.
