

(d) Government lends support to all export promotion efforts including those made by the Federation.

STATEMENT

In addition to the existing export assistance including advance and re-plenshment licences, compensatory support, duty drawbacks, customs bonding, freight reductions etc. the recently established Trade Development Authority has been entrusted with the task of developing both production and export of automobile ancillaries. The Trade Development authority is engaged in the following activities:

(a) Identifying the specific items of automobile ancillaries with comparative advantage and promoting export to both the original equipment and spare part markets;

(b) Locating international long-term buyers of ancillaries both as original equipment and as spare parts, and put them in touch with competent Indian manufacturers for start up of negotiations and conclusion of contracts;

(c) Locating the specific areas of capacity constraints and processing proposals for expansion or creation of capacity for export production.

Considerable work has since been done in this direction and a number of enquiries received from international firms for a range of ancillaries are at different stages of processing.
