STATEMENT

(a) to (c) At the end of year 1969, there were 1597 doctors borne on the live registers of the Employment Exchanges. In a large number of cases even employed persons get themselves registered for better prospects.

The fact remains that a large number of Primary Health Centres have no medical officers and a much larger number have only one doctor. A survey of the distributions of doctors in the urban and rural areas showed that 68 per cent of the doctors were concentrated in urban areas and only 32% in the rural areas. The State Governments have offered various financial incentives to induce doctors to take up service in the rural areas.
