

on the basis of their obtaining the Ph.D. degree.

(b) It has long been the practice with individual Universities in the U.S.A. to evaluate M.A. degrees of Indian and other Universities according to their own admission requirements and standards. Specifically, full credit for M.A. degrees earned in India has not been given because the number of years it takes a student to obtain a Master's degree in India (16 years) is less than the number of years it takes one to obtain a Master's degree in the U.S.A. (17½ to 18 years). Thus, the general trend is to require an Indian student to spend one or two years in the U.S.A. before he could start on his Ph.D. work.

According to the available information, American Universities generally award degrees higher than Ph.D. on honorary basis. As such, the question of recognition of Ph.D. degrees of Indian Universities for the conferment of degrees in U.S.A. such as Sc.D. and Lit.D. does not arise.

(c) The University Grants Commission, within the limited resources available with it is making earnest efforts to improve the quality and content of higher education in the Universities in the country. As far as Agra University is concerned, on the recommendation of the Visiting Committee appointed by the Commission to assess the Fourth Plan requirements of the University, the Commission has allocated to it grants amounting to Rs. 61.38 lakhs for its development programmes for the period ending 1973-74. The Commission has also agreed to provide an additional grant of Rs. 2 lakhs to the University to be utilised during 1969-70 and 1970-71 for the purchase of library books and journals for strengthening the library facilities in the University. Assistance is also available for other programmes sponsored by U.G.C., e.g. Scholarships and Fellowships, Summer Institutes, etc.]
