

cently introduced by which the Chairman of the Licensing Committee reviews periodically the state of pending applications in the various Ministries with a view to expedite their disposal.

The procedure regarding issue of import licences for raw materials, components and spare parts has also been simplified. Since 1967-68, import licences for priority industries are being granted on a replenishment basis with reference to consumption of imported raw materials during the previous period. Repeat the Licences are granted on condition that value of unutilised licences in hand does not exceed the value of import licence applied for. The actual consumption of imported raw materials is required to be certified by Chartered Accountants. For industries not falling within the priority category, import licences are granted half-yearly, for which purpose import entitlements are determined on the basis of earlier imports. The issue of licences is subject to the production of evidence of utilisation of earlier licences by way of opening of letters of Credit or actual physical imports.
