

(c) whether Haryana has refused to give more water to Delhi through the newly constructed Carrier Lined Channel (CLC) between Munak and Haiderpur; and

(d) if so, the details thereof?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF WATER RESOURCES (SHRI VINCENT PALA): (a) Annual and interim seasonal allocations of Yamuna water to Delhi and Haryana are already decided in a memorandum of Understanding signed by the Chief Ministers of Haryana, National capital Territory Delhi, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan and Himachal Pradesh on 12 May, 1994. Delhi and Haryana have however yet to agree on sharing the savings in water due to the construction of a Carrier Line Channel (CLC) between Munak and Haiderpur.

(b) A four member Group of Ministers has been set up to consider all issues relevant to the allocation of waters out of the above said savings.

(c) Haryana has so far not agreed to provide a share in the savings of water to Delhi.

(d) Haryana is of the view it is already supplying water from its share of water to Delhi in excess of Delhi's allocated share to comply with apex Court orders. Delhi is of the view that it bears the cost of construction of the CLC and undertook the construction of Bawana, Okhla and Dwarka water treatment plants to utilize the savings.
