WELCOME TO NEW MEMBERS

MR. CHAIRMAN: With your leave, I should like to express our cordial satisfaction at having so many new Members and the hope that they will add to the distinction of this House by their knowledge, experience, integrity, public spirit and debating power. This House, for the last 10 years, has been a fellowship in which the different Members feel towards each other mutual regard, goodwill and forbearance and even the groups which may vary in their doctrines, etc., are working in a co-operative spirit for the realisation of the objectives of national progress and international friendship. I have no doubt that the Members who have now joined us will breathe the atmosphere of the House and contribute to the working and implementation of the same ideals, the ideal to which they have just paid their allegiance.

Everywhere, in public life, we should be guided not by passions but by principles, not by passing impulses but by abiding values. Behind the cosy comfortable surface, we find so much of inequality, misery, squalor, cruelty, etc. It should be our endeavour to remove these things as speedily as possible. If a conflict arises between our personal comfort and security and national welfare, we must subordinate the former to the latter. There is a great saying given in Narada Smriti— if there is a Vipratipatthi or contradiction between Artha and Dharma—

“अर्थशास्त्रोक्तं मुत्सृज्य
धर्मशास्त्रोक्तं माचरेत् ॥”

—subordinate material comfort and security to the true welfare of the country. Thank you.

The House stands adjourned till tomorrow. The President will address a joint session of the two Houses at 9.30 A.M. tomorrow in the Central Hall.

The House then adjourned at forty minutes past eleven of the clock till Wednesday, the 18th April 1962.
