

SHRI MANUBHAI SHAH: Practically for all, broadly speaking. For 9 Indian languages they have done—they have prepared it for Tamil, Marathi, Gujarati, Bengali, Hindi of course, and for three or four more important languages they are trying, and we hope that as soon as the entire key-board scheme is completed, practically in every Indian language we will have typewriters. I forgot to tell you. Recently typewriters for the Kannada language have also been made ready.

SHRI H. P. SAKSENA: Is there any key-board for Urdu?

श्री मनुभाई शाह : वह तो पुराना है, वह तो है ।

SHRI LOKANATH MISRA: Is there any proposal for taking up the work of finding a key-board for the Oriya language also?

SHRI MANUBHAI SHAH: That also is being done. It will be done for all the Indian languages that find a place in our Constitution.

SHRI ARJUN ARORA: May I know, Sir, if a total ban on the import of this item will be taken into consideration in view of the increasing production in the country?

SHRI MANUBHAI SHAH: Well, that is always in our view, but this being a marginal and critical item required by various other industries also, no hasty step will be in the interests of the industry itself.

SHRI ARJUN ARORA: May I know, Sir, if the Ministry has ascertained that the full capacity of the installed plants in the country is made use of?

SHRI MANUBHAI SHAH: There are only two units and so the question does not arise. But there are many many types of those things—rubberised blowing and sponging materials—which are used in different industries, and therefore what our Kanpur firm produces is not adequate for all the different types of industries concerned, and yet we are taking steps to promote it.
