STATEMENT

The production of foodgrains in 1950 and 1951 was poor on account of failure of crops and a loan agreement was negotiated with the United States of America under which we were entitled to purchase foodgrains in U.S.A. We got a loan of 190 million dollars (American) for the purchase of grain. In accordance with the usual practice of the Ministry of Food and Agriculture, the purchasing of the grain was entrusted to the India Supply Mission at Washington. Ten different grades of wheat totalling 1.9 million tons approximately were purchased from the loan money by our Mission.
