canal, diesel tubewell, electric tubewell separately in each State/UT as on date;

(c) whether and how Government help in providing irrigation water in the deficit areas;

(d) if not, the reasons therefor;

(e) what is the overall shortage of irrigation water in each State;

(f) whether Government have made any programme to provide irrigation water in deficient areas; and

(g) if so, the details thereof and if not, the reasons therefor?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF WATER RESOURCES (SHRI JAY PRAKASH NARAYAN YADAV): (a) The demand of water for irrigation of different States is not estimated on year to year basis.

(b) Irrigation being a State subject, all types of irrigation projects are planned, executed and funded by the respective State Government. Specific information in respect of cost of irrigation water by various means, State-wise, is not maintained.

(c) to (e) The responsibility of planning and implementation of appropriate irrigation projects to provide irrigation facilities in unirrigated areas including deficit areas primarily rests with the respective State Government. However, the Government of India provides financial assistance to the State Governments for expeditious completion of ongoing irrigation projects in different States under the Accelerated Irrigation Benefits Programme (AIBP). As per guidelines of the programme, proposals of the State Governments in respect of projects benefiting drought prone areas are given priority for financial assistance. The Ultimate irrigation potential and the potential created upto the end of 2003-04 as per information provided by the State Governments to the Planning Commission along with the gap between the two are given in the Statement. (See below).

(f) and (g) The Government has prepared the National Perspective Plan for water resources development envisaging interlinking various Peninsular rivers and Himalayan rivers. The Plan inter alia provides for irrigation to water deficit areas. A comprehensive assessment of the feasibility of linking of the rivers has since been completed by the Govt of India and the feasibility studies of 13 river links have been completed so far out of 30 links envisaged under the Plan
